Trade Prospects-German Festivities-The Crops in France, Etc.,

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 .- The trade reports made during the past week are of a more cheerful tone prevailing in various quarters. Reliable informants say of the ters. Reliable informants say of the dry-goods trade that complaints of poor business have generally departed.

It is not disputed that the jobbing trade has been decidedly active with houses doing a Southern and Western business. The prospects of a large business this fall are constantly improving.

ation of festivals similar to those common in Northern Germany in the fall of the year. The festival, which it is proposed to hold on the Union Hill Schuetzen Park, will probably be the grandest in the country.

It commences this morning, and will be continued until Friday evening. Many thousands of persons are expected to visit the grounds from Baltimore, Philadelphia and numerous cities of the West. A number of persons have already arrived at Hoboken for the purpose of witnessing the first grand Platt Deutsch Volksfest ever held in the United States. Immense tents have been erected and a model farm-house constructed. All kinds of games will be in order.

The musical arrangements will be in charge of Mr. Theodore Webar. At night fireworks will be displayed. The formal opening of the festival will take place with a procession of about 5,000 men from New York and the vicinity, who, after parading through the metropolis will proceed in military style to the scaueizen grounds. Tuesday's proceedings will be continued by the erection of a monument to Fritz Reuter.

Mr. H. K. Jackson, in a letter from France to the London Times, gives an account of his impressions during a journey of several hundred miles that he made in Northern and Central France in regard to the wheat crop of that Republic.

that had suffered from floods, rain and drought. He believes that the surplus of Aigeria this year will make good the loss in the South of France. He says with the present population of France some ninety-five million hectaliters are the estimated requirements for food and seed.

This year the area cultivated should certainly give these ninety-five millions, and since 1874 is supposed to have given a surplus of thirty-five million hectaliters, this, with the new crop, will have a tendency to keep France from being a speculative competitor with England for foreign wheat.

The crops in those countries which border upon the Battic and Black Seas are generally disappointing, and all indications point to a good demand for American breadstuffs at higher prices than those which prevailed last year.

An Abduction Case.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, Sept. 6 .- The town of Storm Lake has been greatly excited over an abduction case. A young man named Lander, who for some cause separated from his wife, a short time ago, leaving with her a child four months old, returned on Friday in company with three brothers and went to the house of his father-in-law, where his wife was stopping, presented bimself and de-manded the child, which he obtained possession of and left town. Officers were soon on their track, and on Friday night succeeded in arresting the ab-ductors and recovering the child, which they returned to its mother. Lander and his companions are locked up and will have a trial to-day.

DES MOINES, IOWA, Sept. 6 .- The mail train west, on the Chicago and Rock Island railroad, when at Commerce Station, ten miles from the city, yesterday, was ditched. The sudden rise of Coon river had washed the earth from under the track, and the high water caused the

The engine and mail car passed over the baggage car, dropped down, and then turned bottom up. John Hughes, brakeman, standing on the platform, was pitched to the ground and crushed to death under the baggage car.

Lacey Miller, baggage man, was badly bruised by trunks fulfing on him. The Trip to Chautauqua Lake, Sopt. 3, 1875.

At 9:32 P. M. Thursday evening, September 1st, your correspondent was at the C. H. & D Depot, to Join the excursion party from Cincipnati over the A. & G. W. Railroad to Chautauqua Lake. On inquiry, fie assertained that most of the party were already assembled at the train, in the rear of the depot. Walking back he came upon a group of gentlemen, and while looking round to find some familiar face, he was accosted by one of the agonts of the road, who said, "Here is the car in which you will travel."

It was a splendid palace sleeping-coach, one of the very best on this or any other line, in appearance nearly new, with panels, cellings, &c., of polished rosewood and chony, righty carpeted and i pholstered, and it contained all that could contribute to the comfort and convenience of passengers. It seemed to us, as we took possession of a seat all to ourself, that the Car of all the Russias and his suit, or even General Grant and his family, it irvaveling "in propria personse," would not, or could not, be better accommodated.

At 9:50 the whistid sounded, the bell rang, and we moved out of the depot, and soon had left Cincinnati far behind. Our party compised come tweety-live gentlemen, Just a bout the coach, which was thus full without being at all crowided. We roll on at a rapid rate, and Hamilton is quickly reached and passed. The "boys" had, until now, been very sendate. In the enjoyment of their cigarrs, and in quiet conversation, one would have thought they were about to spend the very sendate. At 9:30 the whiste sounded, the bolt rang, and we moved out of the depot, and soon had left Cincinnati far behind. Our party comprised some twenty-five gentlemen, just a bout enough to allow eace one a separate berth in the coach, which was thus full without being at all crowded. We roll on at a rapid rate, and Hamilton is quickly reached and passed. The "boys" had, until now, been very sodate. In the enjoyment of their cigars, and in quiet conversation, one would have thought they were about to seen the evening. But as the distance between them and their homes increased their spirits seemed to rise proportionately. Then, it was not long before we had as gay and lively a crowd as ever it was our lot to mingle with, though sool-natured and gentlemanly in the midst of their most uproarious mirth, they all certainly were. They were determined to make the most of the occasion as the time and place served, and agreeably to their respective desires, and, though the demon headache, our ancient enemy, had come on one of his frequent visits and compelled our early retirement, we would not, had it been in our power, have been one to say nay to their joility. And so the night wore oa, and one by one my merry comrades sought their beds.

"If the folks on this road furnish such sumptuous accommodations for dead-heads," said one, "what in the name of all that is magnificent wouldn't they do for paying passengur."

cent wouldn't they do for paying passengers."

Finally all was still save the rimbling and clattering of the train, and now it was my turn to sleep, and I slept soundly, and woke up in the morning only in time for breakfast at the town of kent at 7:30.

At Meadville, 10:55—"Fifteen minutes for dinner;" and that over, again we hurried on, and at 1:30 came the welcome announcement, "Here we are; Chautauqua Laka."

The A. & G. W. track runs within two or three hundred yards of the lake shore at the portion known as "Lake View." A wooden pavement extends from the station down to the two notels situated at this point To one of these, the Kent House, we directed our way, and, arrived there, the following gentlemen composing our party were present or accounted Davis, James Sarver, clerk in the A. & G. W. office; E. P. Eckert, ditto; Jacob Schaeffer, P. G. Cooper and Mr. Gates, all of Cincinnati; Messis. J. G. Arnold, C. L. Monsch and brother, of Louisville, and Mr. G. M. Ciark, of Newport. The press was represented by Mr. Alex Sands, jr., of the Cincinnati Thues, and the writer.

Mr. D. E. Holmes, Assistant Passenger Agent of the A. & G. W., at Cincinnati, was in charge of the party, and had we been called upon to select from the whole race of railroad men one to act in that capacity, none more suitable in all respects could possibly have been found. Possessing all the requirements of a gentieman, perfect in the knowledge and faithful in the discharge of the duties that had now devoived upon him, Mr. Holmes merited and received the highest admiration and thanks of every one. No one could be more courteons and accommotating to all alike, or more carnest and sincere in his efforts to insure the safety and comfort of those who were thus well pleases to acknowledge him as their chief, and to regard him, for the present, as their best friend.

to regard him, for the present, as their best friend.

Under Mr. Holmes' efficient direction, our first objective point was quickly decided upon, and directly after dinner we started on a trip up the lake on board the steamer Jamestown.

Chautanqua lake is located in a county of the same name, which is the most westerly, and also the most southwesterly partion of the State of New York. Its length is from 30 to 22 miles. It varies in width from one to thros miles, it is remarkable as being the most elevated body of navigable water on this comment, and by actual measurement has been ascertained to be nearly 1,800 feet above the sea level. The name "Chautauqua" significe "A Foggy Place," and that, I am tood, is, at certam periods, one of its characteristics. During the fail, winter and early spring, dense fogs are of frequentoc-currence, though, of course, such phenomena are soldom, if over, witnessed by summer visitors. During the warm season the air is cool, bracing and peculiariy satubrious. The lake is fed entirely by springs, having no inlot, and may, of itself, be regarded as a huge spring. It has a nacrow outlet at the southern extremity, through which its waters are conveyed, if I mistake not, to the Allegheny river.

On this quited Jamestown, a thriving manufacturing place, is situated, and is the starting point for the steamer running up the lake. "Fluvania" and "Griffiths," at both of which there are hotels, are on the eastern side, one and two miles above, and are the first stopping places for this steamer. Opposite to the interis "Lake View," where our party fad established their headquarters.

Our steamer was a handsome and comfortable craft, and, for that locality, a large one we left Lake View about 2½ o'clock, and our first course was A. N. W. for five or six miles, when a landing called Bemus' Point was reached. Here the lake is narrowest, being only about half a mile across, and it is apparently sout in upon us as if to bar our factour progress. But a mile or so more, and what seemed in the dist we have been a partial with the probably eight to ten miles long and two to three miles wide.

The lake is surrounded by hitis, not bold or rugged, but still pictoresque, rising gently from the shore to a height of five or six hundred feet. On every hand there is a delightful prospect of lofty eminence, and lowly vale, given meadows and cultivaled fields, with elegant groves, and cottages and farm houses scattered at intervals.

A brisk wind was blowing from the western shore, as our steamer glitted gaily over the surface of the take, which was sufficiently rolling to make our motion all the more pleasant. Anothe, half hour's ride brought us to Fair Point, a locality rendered somewhat famous the present season by the visit of Presitent Grant, who attended a camp-meeting held there, the latter part of July I believe.

Leaving here three or four miles more carried us to Mayville, at the upper terminus of the lake. This is a handsome village, the capital of Chautmuqua county, and through it the Lake Shore road passes. It contains several next and commodious hotels, which are extensively patronized by the citizens of Cleveland and Buffalo.

We stopped at Mayville but a fow moments,

And music beat;

And music beat;

We stopped at Mayville but a few moments, and our return trip was rapally made. At six o'clock we were again at Lake View. We had run, going and coming, some lotty miles in about three and a half mours. To all of us the trip afforted the greatest enjoyment. Independent of the novelty of the occasion, the pendent of the novelty of the occasion, the hot, cross and unsty elect work were sure to fill the most languid heart with a sense of delight, especially after a quick vanation from the hot, close and dusty city.

The air of Lake Chautauqua is famed for its salubtions and invigorating qualities. No more suitable place for invalida can be found in the country, while those in health but worn, with labor and business in the city, could not felt something in his pocket, and on making a left something in his pocket, and on his distance his mind.

"Happy Jack."

There were five prizes offered of sums amounting to $250, viz: First prize, a purse of $125; second, $60; third, $35; fourth, $30; and fifth, $10. The distance run was about 16 miles from Jamestown, at the lower end of the lake, to the goff near Bemus Point and return. The "Two Susies," being much larger than the rest, was "handicapped" with them, that is, she allowed each one a certain time the start of her, proportionate to the size of her autagonist. They were all sloop-rigged, and each presented a nest and trim appearance.

We spent but one more night at the lake, and we all sincerely regretted the necessity of our limited stay. Our party bad found ample means of enjoyment in rowing, sailing, fishing, and steaming about to different points on the lake, and all brought away with them the happiest remembrances of our visit, and not one of us perhaps but formed the determination to return to Chautauqua at some future day and for a longer sojoura.

We left for Cincinnati Sunday the 5th, at 1
P. M. It is pleasing to be able to say that either going or coming, there was not a single accident or event of any sort to interrupt the harmony and pleasure that prevailed throughout the entire trip.

The Tobacco Trade of Cincinnati, at a meeting held this evening at the office of F. A. Prague—B. F. Power in the chair—through their committee, consisting of James F. Dunham, W. F. Hanks and Jacob Phistor, reported the following:

The Tobacco Trade of Cincinnati having learned of the visit of the Hon. W. D. Kelley, member of Congress from Philiadelphia, to the city, hasten to avail themselves of the opportunity to express to him personally their warm appreciation of the services he has rendered the Trade in Congress on the very many occasions it has been the subject of legislation in that body, and to acknowledge their profound obligations therefor.

Judge Kelly gave cheerfully very much of his time to the tobacco question in Congress, and studied it closely and was thoroughly well informed on the subject in all its phases and details. His views were always of the most comprehensive and liberal character, and he not only suggested many, but was also the carnest advocate of every measure calculated to free the trade in this great staple of the South and West from every burthensome restriction, and that would encourage and promote its growth and manufactured tobacco to 16 cents per pound, instead of advancing it as was done, and worked zealously for it.

In Congress every delegation of the trade received at his hands the greatest kindaess and attention, and they always felt and knew that in Judge Kelly they have a sincere friend, on whom they could rely implicitly, and he never betrayed this confidence: therefore, be if Resolved, That it is with the greatest pleasure we do ourselves the honor of inviting him to meet us at our Trade Rooms Enesday, at 9 o'clock in the morning, and allow us to show him through our factories and warehouses, and to permit us to become personally acquainted with him.

Resolved, That it of the Association for this purpose.

A discussion as to whether the relation of Dr. Lowry as supernumerary preacher should be continued then arose. Several members were of the opinion that Dr. Lowry was still very efficient to do his regular church work, and that, therefore, it would be a violation of the law to continue his relation as a supernumerary preacher.

The request on motion was finally granted. The election for reserved dilegates to the General Conference was then proceeded with, and on the five bailot resulted in the choice of Rev. W. H. Sutherland, he having obtained 52 votes. The whole number of votes cast was 183, of which 67 were necessary for a choice.

Dr. R. S. Newton, of Philadelphia, was introduced to the Conforence at this time, and made a few remarks which were of general interest, and were well received by all.

Judge Hagans, by request, then gave his opinion in regard to the abandonment of the Springfield High School and Famale College.

He held that the institution could not be relinquished unless by a repeal of the charter and a disposition of the property by legislation, or the whole matter could be referred, with instructions, to a new Board of Trustees, who would supersede the present Board.

The matter was finally referred to the original committee.
